

BuzzFeed

News Quizzes Tasty More ▾

9 Awesomely '80s Kids Bedrooms

In the 1980s, nothing was more important to kids than character-themed merchandise. Also, BRB, eBaying He-Man and the Masters of the Universe bedsheets.

Posted on March 21, 2014, at 10:19 p.m.

Brian Galindo

BuzzFeed Staff

1. Garfield

Share

Share

Flickr: wishbook

What kid didn't love Garfield? He was the brat we all wished we could be.

Plus, you were sorta conditioned to like him, after all, he did ride in the backseat of the car with you.

2. Smurfs

The Smurfs were one of the few gender neutral cartoons series and toys of the '80s, which made it highly likely that any little boy or girl would have one of of set of these sheets in there room.

3. Cabbage Patch Kids

Via Flickr: wishbook

Perhaps no toy is more iconic and represents the '80s better than the Cabbage Patch Kids. Being one of the biggest fads of the time of course meant they came with every kind of tie-in product.

4. Gremlins

Via Flickr: wishbook

It's pretty cool that these rather dark kids film got the whole kid bedroom tie-in. But, to be honest, I don't would've been able to sleep with that Stripe stuffed animal.

5. Care Bears

Via Flickr: wishbook

While I applauded the fact they tried to make these sheets gender neutral (the top picture being a boys room), Care Bears tended to lean a bit more towards girl toys territory.

6. Return of the Jedi

Via Flickr: wishbook

Nothing was cooler and bigger in the early '80s than Star Wars. Luckily, they wisely choose against putting the Ewoks on the sheets.

7. He-Man and the Masters of the Universe